

NOURREDINE AL-WARARI PHOTOGRAPHY

Los Angeles photographer, Nouredine El-Warari, is a master black and white printer.

Born in Casablanca, Morocco, Nouredine El warari's interest in photography started at a young age. He began to shoot with a plastic Diana camera and fell in love with it.

But his passion grew in the darkroom where image making was fascinating, and magical.

A graduate in Literature and languages, Nouredine El=Warari came to study Photography in Austin,Texas, and came to Hollywood soon after graduation. Nouredine put this skills to work collaborating and working with some of the greats in photography--William Claxton, Greg Gorman, Herb Ritts, and Gordon Parks to name a few. Nouredine's artistic contribution to their images brought the prints to another level. He continues the tradition with his own business, Kitchen Prints, finding magic in the darkroom for his clients

A wonderful photographer himself, Nouredine captures Morocco in a way that only a native can--as part of the tapestry that allows him to see the mystery of dark alleys and understand a covered culture that is rich in ceremony and celebration. The images glow with slices of light and need to been seen in person to appreciate the subtitles of his darkroom
